Eyes like a Child (Wolf/Wolf)

I've been wonderin' lately bout the road my heart is taking all I hear inside me is the sound of crystal breaking don't you blame me for everything no one can say if love's here to stay don't you blame me for everything how does it show, say how do we know the things we outgrow?

and then he comes to me
with eyes like a child
how can I hurt him now
I'll tell him the truth some other time somewhere, somehow can't break his world just now

lies don't hold forever, someday your heart will be broken words that shatter your daydreams can't forever be unspoken I don't feel much of anything even the skin is cold to my touch
can't tell you why this river ran dry got no tears to cry

it is easier pretending my heart's still beating to the music playing a book without an ending, leaving the outcome open without saying loving you has lost its magic, it's time to let it go
